DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's election with traverse of claims 1-6, 16-19, and 31-33 in the reply filed on 21 March 2006 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that search and examination of both sets of claims would not be a serious burden. This is not found persuasive because there are two separately patentable concepts set forth in the two sets of claims (as noted in the previous Office action), each requiring its own search.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6, 16-19, and 31-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 0 465 961 (Miyazawa et al.) in view of JP 7-273340 (Egawa).

With respect to claim 1, figure 3 of Miyazawa et al. shows extraction of carriers generated by impact ionization (column 2, line 48) in a channel region of an active device, by applying a voltage to electrode 17, adjacent to bias supply layer 16. Carriers generated by impact would be "hot" because they would have more energy than normal carriers. The claim is anticipated, hence obvious. Alternatively, and in particular with respect to the electrode configuration recited in claims 3 and 5, the Egawa reference shows in figures 1 and 3 an extraction electrode 13 that is in contact with the underlying channel region, and separated entirely from source and drain areas. It would have been obvious to supply such an electrode configuration to extract the hot carriers of the Miyazawa device for the reasons noted in Egawa, i.e., to allow a substrate potential to be applied directly to the channel. With respect to claim 2, it would have been obvious to apply a source or drain voltage for extraction purposes, because such voltages are readily available on a chip, through power supply wiring lines. It would have been obvious to use these SOI transistors in a flat panel display, because this is a common use for SOI, where the advantages of SOI such as low cost are particularly relevant. Other claims not specifically discussed contain limitations that parallel those above, and would have been taught or obvious for the same reasons.
